The Consolidate Trade Marks Act

Notice is hereby given of the Trade marks Act, cf. The Consolidate Trade Marks Act 162 of 21 February 1997, including the amendments which follow from Act No. 412 of 31 May 2000 and Act No. 1258 of 20 December 2000.¹

Part 1. General Provisions ➡

Section 1

Pursuant to the provisions of this Act persons and enterprises may obtain an exclusive right to trade marks (trade mark right). Trade marks mean distinctive signs for goods or services being used or intended to be used by a commercial enterprise.

Signs of which a trade mark may consist

Section 2

(1) A Trade mark may consist of any sign capable of distinguishing the goods or services of one enterprise from those of other enterprises and capable of being represented graphically, in particular:

- (i) words and word combinations, including slogans, personal names, company names or names of real property;
- (ii) letters and numerals;
- (iii) pictures and designs; or
- (iv) the shape, equipment or packaging of the goods.

A trade mark right shall not be acquired for signs which consist exclusively of a shape which is dictated by the goods themselves, a shape of goods which is necessary to obtain a technical result or a shape which gives substantial value to the goods.

Establishing a trade mark right

Section 3

(1) A trade mark right may be established either

(i) by registration of a trade mark in accordance with the rules of this Act for the goods or services comprised by the registration; or

(ii) by commencement of use of a trade mark in this country for the goods or services for which the trade mark has commenced to be used and for which it is continuously used.

(2) Use of a trade mark which according to its nature is excluded from registration shall not establish any trade mark right.

(3) If the trade mark is devoid of the required distinctive character on commencement of use, the right shall not be established until a distinctive character is created by the use of the mark.

Contents of the trade mark right

Section 4

(1) The proprietor of a trade mark right shall be entitled to prohibit all persons not having his consent from using in the course of trade any sign if

(i) the sign is identical with the trade mark, and the goods or services for which the sign is used are identical with the goods or services for which the trade mark is protected, or

(ii) the sign is identical with or similar to the trade mark, and the goods or services are identical with or similar to those covered by the trade mark, if there is a likelihood of confusion including the likelihood of association with the trade mark.

(2) Irrespective of the limitation in subsection (1) to goods or services being identical with or similar to those covered by the trade mark, the proprietor of the trade mark shall be entitled to prohibit the use of the Trade mark also in relation to goods or services which are not identical or similar where the trade mark is well known in this country and the use would take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character or the repute of the trade mark.

(3) Use in the course of trade means in particular:

(i) affixing the sign to the goods or to the packaging thereof;

(ii) offering the goods for sale, putting them on the market or stocking them for that purpose or offering or supplying services under the sign in question;

(iii) importing or exporting the goods under the sign in question; or

(iv) using the sign on business papers and in advertising.

Limitations in the rights of the proprietor

Section 5

The proprietor of a trade mark right shall not be entitled to prohibit others from using, in the course of trade, and in accordance with honest practices in industrial or commercial matters:

(i) his own name and address;

(ii) indications concerning the kind, quality, quantity, intended purpose, value or geographical origin of the goods or services, the time of production of the goods or of rendering the services or other characteristics of the goods or services; or

(iii) the trade mark when it is necessary for the indication of the intended purpose of the goods or services, in particular as accessories or spare parts.

Exhaustion

Section 6

(1) The proprietor of a trade mark right shall not be entitled to prohibit the use of the trade mark in relation to goods which have been put on the market in the European Community under that trade mark by the proprietor himself or with his consent.

(2) Subsection (1) shall not apply if there are legitimate reasons for the proprietor to oppose further commercialisation of the goods, especially where the condition of the goods has been changed or impaired after they have been put on the market.

Conflicting rights

Section 7

If two or more parties individually claim a trade mark right in the same or similar signs, the right which has arisen first shall have priority, unless otherwise provided for in the following sections. A registered right shall be deemed to have arisen on the date of filing of the application for registration, cf. Section 12, or on the date from which priority is claimed pursuant to the rules of section 18 or 19.

Section 8

A later right in a registered trade mark may co-exist with an earlier right in a confusingly similar trade mark provided that the registration was applied for in good faith and that the proprietor of the earlier right has been aware of and tolerated the use in this country of the later right for a period of five successive years.

Section 9

A later right in a trade mark may also co-exist with an earlier right in a confusingly similar trade mark, if the proprietor of the earlier right has not, within a reasonable time, taken the necessary steps to prevent the use of the later mark.

Section 10

(1) In the cases referred to in sections 8 and 9, the proprietor of a later trade mark shall not be entitled to oppose the use of an earlier trade mark even if the proprietor of the earlier trade mark may no longer invoke his right against the later trade mark.

(2) In the cases referred to in section 9, it may be decided, if it is deemed reasonable that one or both of the trade marks shall only be used in a special manner, for example in a particular shape or with the addition of an indication of locality.

Reproduction of a trade mark in dictionaries, etc.

Section 11

(1) In encyclopaedias, handbooks, textbooks or similar publications of professional nature the author, editor and publisher shall, at the request of the proprietor of a registered trade mark, ensure that the trade mark is not reproduced without indication to the effect that it is a registered trade mark.

(2) If any party fails to comply with the provisions of subsection (1), he shall be liable to pay the costs of publishing a correcting notice in the manner deemed reasonable.

Part II. Registration of trade marks ➡

Section 12

(1) An application for the registration of a trade mark shall be filed with the Patent and Trademark Office. The application shall contain a reproduction of the trade mark and state the applicant's name or company. Furthermore, the goods or services for which registration of the trade mark is applied for shall be stated.

(2) The application shall be drawn up in accordance with the provisions laid down pursuant to section 48. The prescribed fee shall accompany the application.

(3) The Patent and Trade mark Office shall keep a register of trade marks. The Office shall publish registrations, etc.

Grounds for refusal

Section 13

(1) For a trade mark to be registered it shall be of the nature referred to in section 2, including a distinctive character.

(2) The following trade marks shall not be registered:

(i) trade marks which consist exclusively of signs or indications which may serve, in trade, to designate the kind, quality, quantity, intended purpose, value, geographical origin, the time of production of the goods or of rendering the services or other characteristics of the goods or services;

(ii) trade marks which consist exclusively of signs or indications which are customarily used to designate the goods or services in the current language or in the established practices of the trade.

(3) Irrespective of the provisions of subsections (1) and (2) a trade mark may be registered if, before the filing of the application in consequence of the use which has been made thereof, it has acquired a distinctive character.

Section 14

Furthermore, the following shall not be registered:

(i) trade marks which are contrary to law, public order or morality;

(ii) trade marks which are liable to mislead the public, for instance as to the nature, quality or geographical origin of the goods or services;

(iii) trade marks which have not been authorised by the competent authorities and are to be refused pursuant to Article 6ter of the Paris Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property, and trade marks which include badges, emblems, and escutcheons which are of public interest, unless the consent of the appropriate authority to their registration has been given;

(iv) trade marks which without permission consist of or contain an element which can be construed as a personal name or company name to which another party has a legal title, or as a portrayal provided allusion is not made to persons long dead, or which without permission contain a distinctive name of or a picture of the real property of another party;

(v) Trade marks which without permission consist of or contain an element which can be construed as a distinctive title of the protected literary or artistic work of another party or which infringe the copyright in such works or the right to a photograph of another party or the industrial property rights of another party.

Section 15

(1) A trade mark shall not be registered if:

(i) it is identical with an earlier trade mark, and the goods or services for which the trade mark is sought registered are identical with the goods or services for which the earlier trade mark is protected; or

(ii) there exists a likelihood of confusion including a likelihood of association with the earlier trade mark, because the later trade mark is identical with or similar to the earlier trade mark and the goods or services are identical or similar.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1) earlier trade marks mean:

(i) marks of the following categories in respect of which the date of application for registration is earlier than the date of application for registration of the trade mark, taking account, where appropriate, of the priorities claimed in respect of those marks:

a) Community trade marks;

b) trade marks registered in this country; or

c) trade marks registered under international agreements and having effect in this country;

(ii) Community trade marks which claim seniority, in accordance with the Regulation on the Community trade mark, in relation to a trade mark referred to under (i) b) and c), even if the latter trade mark has been surrendered or has lapsed;

(iii) applications for trade marks referred to under (i) and (ii), subject to their registration;

(iv) trade marks which, on the date of application for registration of the trade mark, or, where appropriate, of the priority claimed in respect of the application for registration of the trade mark, are well known in this country, in the sense in which the words "well known" are used in Article 6bis of the Paris Convention.

(3) A trade mark shall, furthermore, not be registered if

(i) it is identical with or similar to an earlier Community trade mark, cf. Subsection (2) and is sought registered for goods or services which are not similar to those for which the earlier Community trade mark is registered, provided that the earlier Community trade mark is well known in the European Union and the use of the later trade mark will take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character or the repute of the earlier Community trade mark.

(ii) it is identical with or similar to a "well known" trade mark, cf. subsection (2) (iv), and is sought registered for goods or services which are not similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is well known, provided that the use of the later trade mark may lead to a likelihood of association between the marks, and the use will take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character or the repute of the earlier trade mark, or

(iii) it is identical with or only insignificantly distinct from a trade mark, which at the date of filing of the application for registration or, where appropriate, of the priority claimed in respect of the application for registration, has commenced to be used in another country and is still in use there for goods or services which are identical with or similar to those for which the later trade mark is sought registered, and the applicant at the date of the filing had, or should have had, knowledge of the foreign trade mark.

(4) A trade mark shall moreover not be registered if:

(i) the trade mark is identical with or similar to an earlier Danish trade mark within the meaning of subsection (2) and is sought registered for goods or services which are not similar to those for which the earlier trade mark is registered, where the earlier trade mark is well known in this country and where the use of the later trade mark would take unfair advantage of, or be detrimental to, the distinctive character or the repute of the earlier trade mark; or

(ii) in consequence of use in this country a right has been acquired to an identical or confusingly similar trade mark or to another identical or confusingly similar sign used in the course of trade prior to the date of filing of the application for registration of the later trade mark, or, where appropriate, of the priority claimed in respect of the application for registration of the later trade mark, if the proprietor of the earlier right can prohibit the use of the later trade mark.

(5) A trade mark shall not be excluded from registration pursuant to the provisions of subsections (1) to (4) where the proprietor of the earlier trade mark or other earlier rights consents to the registration of the later trade mark.

Disclaimers

Section 16

(1) A trade mark right acquired by registration shall not include such elements of the trade mark as cannot be registered separately.

(2) If a trade mark contains such elements, and there is special reason to assume that registration of the trade mark may cause doubt as to the scope of the trade mark right, such elements may on registration be explicitly excepted from the protection.

(3) If elements of the trade mark which have been excepted from the protection appear later on to have become registrable, a new registration may be made of these elements or of the actual trade mark without the limitation referred to in subsection (2).

Section 17

Trade marks shall be registered in one or more classes of goods or services. The Minister of Trade and Industry shall lay down provisions concerning the division into classes.

The priority implies that the application in relation to later occurring circumstances, such as other parties' applications for or use of the trade mark, shall be considered filed at the same time as the filing of the application in the foreign state.

The priority implies that the application in relation to later occurring circumstances such as other parties' applications for or use of the trade mark, shall be considered filed at the same time as its use at the exhibition. The exhibition referred to are such exhibitions as are defined in the Convention on International Exhibitions signed on 22nd November 1928, as subsequently revised.

Processing of applications

Section 20

(1) If the application does not comply with this Act or the provisions laid down pursuant to this Act, or if the Patent and Trademark Office has other objections to the acceptance of the application, the Patent and Trademark Office shall notify the applicant accordingly and invite him to file his observations within a specified time limit.

(2) On the expiry of the time limit the Patent and Trademark Office shall decide on the application unless the applicant is invited again to file his observations.

Claiming a right to a trade mark

Section 21

(1) If anybody claims to be entitled to a trade mark for which registration has been applied for or to a registered trade mark, the Patent and Trademark Office may, if it finds the question doubtful, invite him to bring it before the courts within a time limit to be specified. Section 23

(1) When the registration has been published, opposition may be filed against the validity of the registration. The opposition, which shall be reasoned, shall be filed with the Patent and Trademark Office within two months from the date of publication. A fee, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Minister of Trade and Industry, shall accompany the opposition.

(2) If opposition has been filed, the Patent and Trademark Office shall examine the registration in accordance with section 20. Section 28 (5) shall also apply during the examination. The proprietor of the registered right shall be notified of the opposition and be given an opportunity to submit his observations.

(3) If the registration is maintained, the person having filed the opposition and the proprietor of the right shall be given notice hereof.

(4) If the registration is declared void in part or in full, the decision to that effect shall be published when it is final.

Amendment of trade marks

Section 24

(1) At the request of the proprietor insignificant amendments of a registered trade mark may be made, provided that the general impression of the trade mark is not influenced by the amendment.

(2) Amendments of registered trade marks shall be entered in the register and published.

(3) At the request of the proprietor insignificant amendments may also be made of a filed trade mark.

(2) The following shall also constitute use within the meaning of subsection (1):

If the grounds for revocation are a lack of distinctive character or the like, cf. section 13, the use which has taken place after the registration, cf. section 13 (3) shall also be taken into account.

(2) A registration may also be revoked if the trade mark:

(i) has not been used in accordance with section 25;

(ii) in consequence of the activity or inactivity of the proprietor, has become the common name in the trade for the product or service in respect of which it is registered; or

(4) Where grounds for revocation exist in respect of only some of the goods or services for which the trade mark has been registered, the revocation shall cover those goods or services only.

(5) If the ground for revocation is an earlier colliding trade mark, claim for revocation may only be made if the person having claimed the revocation at the request of the other party can prove that the earlier Trade mark has been used in accordance with section 25. If an earlier registered trade mark has only been used for some of the goods or services for which it is registered, it shall only be considered registered for those goods or services. Any of the parties may at any time bring an action against the other party with respect to matters which are brought up in the case, irrespective of the Patent and Trademark Office having made a decision on the case or not.

Revocation by court decision

Section 29

Revocation of a registration under section 28 shall be made by a court decision, cf., however, section 30. Administrative revocation

Section 30²

(1) After the termination of the registration procedure, any person may submit to the Patent and Trademark Office a claim that a trade mark registration be revoked if the conditions of revocation in section 28 are complied with. A fee, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Minister of Trade and Industry, shall accompany the claim.

(2) Where proceedings before the court as to a trade mark registration remain to be finally decided upon, a request pursuant to subsection 1 may not be filed as to the registration in question.

(3) Where proceedings as to a trade mark registration are brought before the court prior to a final decision on a request, pursuant to subsection 1, relating to the same registration, the Patent and Trade mark Office shall temporarily shelve the consideration of the request pending the conclusive settlement of the proceedings, unless the request has been filed by the proprietor of the trade mark.

(4) The proprietor of the registered right shall be notified of the claim and shall be given an opportunity to submit his observations.

(5) If the registration is revoked in part or in full, the decision to that effect shall be published when it is final.

(6) The decision of the Patent and Trade mark Office may be brought before the Patent Board of Appeal and the courts in accordance with section 46. However, any of the parties may at any time bring an action against the other party with respect to matters which are brought up in the case, irrespective of the Patent and Trademark Office having made a decision on the case or not.

Section 31
