CHAPTER 90:04

MERCHANDISE MARKS ACT

2 of 1888

An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to Fraudulent Marks on Merchandise.

[18TH AUGUST, 1888]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as the Merchandise Marks Act.

Interpretation.

2. (1) In this Act—

“false trade description” means a trade description which is false in a material respect as regards the goods to which it is applied, and includes every alteration of a trade description, whether by way of addition, effacement, or otherwise, where that alteration makes the description false in a material respect, and the fact that a trade description is a trade mark, or part of a trade mark, shall not prevent that trade description being a false trade description within the meaning of this Act;

“goods” means anything which is the subject of trade, manufacture, or merchandise;

“name” includes any abbreviation of a name;

“person”, “manufacturer, dealer, or trader”, and “proprietor” include any body of persons corporate or unincorporate;

“trade description” means any description, statement, or other indication, direct or indirect, as to—

- (a) the number, quantity, measure, gauge, or weight of any goods; or
- (b) the place or country in which any goods were made or produced; or
- (c) the mode of manufacturing or producing any goods; or
- (d) the material of which any goods are composed; or

(e) any goods being the subject of an existing patent, privilege or copyright;

and the use of any figure, word, or mark, which, according to the custom of the trade, is commonly taken to be an indication of any of the above matters, and a customs entry relating to imported goods as applied to those goods, shall be deemed to be a trade description within the meaning of this Act;

“trade mark” means a mark used, or proposed to be used, upon or in connection with goods for the purpose of indicating that they are the goods of the proprietor of that trade mark by virtue of manufacture, selection, certification, dealing with, or offering for sale.

(2) The provisions of this Act respecting the application of a false trade description to goods shall extend to the application to goods of any figures, words, or marks, or arrangement or combination thereof, whether including a trade mark or not, reasonably calculated to lead persons to believe that the goods are the manufacture or merchandise of someone other than the person whose manufacture or merchandise they really are.

(3) The provisions of this Act respecting the application of a false trade description to goods, or respecting goods to which a false trade description is applied, shall extend to the application to goods of any false name or initials of a person, and to goods with the false name or initials of a person applied, in like manner as if that name or those initials were a trade description, and, for the purpose of this enactment, the expression false name or initials means, as applied to any goods, any name or initials of a person which—

- (a) are not a trade mark or part of a trade mark; and
- (b) are identical with, or a colourable imitation of, the name or initials of a person carrying on business in connection with goods of the same description, and not having authorised the use of that name or those initials; and

(c) are either those of a fictitious person or of some person not carrying on business in good faith in connection with those goods.

- (a) having taken all reasonable precautions against committing an offence under this Act, he had, at the time of the commission of the alleged offence, no reason to suspect the genuineness of the trade mark or trade description; and on demand made by or on behalf of the prosecutor, he gave all the information in his power with respect to the persons from whom he obtained the goods or things; or
